Brittany Studios invites companies involved fields related to the aerospace industry to become sponsors of the animation production “Chick Space Center” to boost their brand image towards their clientele and as an internal communication program for their employees’ children to enjoy.

Chick Space Center is a particularly interesting mini series production, 30 seconds per episode, as its production design integrates a spacecraft imagined by the children of kindergarten schools worldwide. The selected illustrations are adapted in a cartoony style reminiscent of the A-days of the animation industry under the influence of the UPA company. The final result and first episode swings! and forecasts fun to audiences on our YouTube and Tiktok channels as well as in the classrooms where these intuitively designed space vehicles were conceived. Hence the baseline of this production:

Elevator Pitch:

Chick Space Center is an animation miniseries production which is initiated in kindergarten schools as an analog program for children to imagine spacecraft which will be presented as a cartoon vehicle used by Chick to travel to the stars and beyond. A thrilling experience for the children!

Problem:

Children school programs tends to emphasize digital means. Children rarely see their school artworks translate into their physical reality, especially into an animation production.

Solution:

The Chick Space Center animation program invites children to engage in analog artistic productions with crayons, pastels and paint! Feeling physical mediums is a must!

This is an intuitive experience which is both individual and collective as the artworks produced by each student are to be part of an class exhibition. Focusing on the creativity and then sharing with families is socially engaging and healthy.

Technology:

With social medias offering to animation producers their own mean of realtime distribution worldwide, Chick Space Center production design uses online technologies to 1) source artworks from children/schools using the Chick Space Center free of charge pedagogy, b) produce and upload a cartoon within one month after selecting its artwork, and c) upload cartoons on Chick Space Center YouTube and Tiktok channels.

Market Opportunity:

Worldwide, kindergarten schools are keen to experience a pedagogy which enhance children’s wonderful intuition and infinite imagination via storytelling. Sponsors appreciate such values associated with their brand by the new generation.

Status:

UNESCO French Commission as well as schools in Europe, and Asia have officially endorsed Chick Space Center.
